

Nature - home - housing: Negotiating urban space and its development

call for papers

round table / monothematic issue of Critical Housing Analysis

on nature and spatial justice & the role of nature in contemporary city with respect to the issues of development and planning of urban space

Our aim is to offer various perspectives on the changes of the role and shape of urban nature and the environment, the relationship of current urban development policies to urban nature, and the interconnections between nature, housing and home in the city.

zahradky.soc.cas.cz

SOU
Institute of Sociology CAS

 Akademie věd
České republiky
Strategie AV21
Spíckový výzkum ve veřejném zájmu

We welcome contributions that critically reassess

- the role of nature in the city especially with respect to housing and the feeling at home
- the relationship of urban policies to urban nature and their impact on housing
- the approach of urban planning to urban nature after the fall of socialism and we hope to discuss contemporary trends in understanding the role of nature in developing and experiencing the city.

Call for papers - details

- contributions length: 3,000 words maximum
- deadline for abstracts (300 words): 15. Sep 2016
- confirmation of acceptance: 20. Sep 2016
- round table: 31. Oct 2016, Prague
- full article deadline for the monothematic issue: 31. Nov 2016

Travel costs to the round table in Prague are covered by the Czech Academy of Sciences.

Petr Gibas

Institute of Sociology of the Czech Academy of Sciences

Jilská 1, 110 00 Prague, Czech Republic

petr.gibas@soc.cas.cz

zahradky.soc.cas.cz

SOU
Institute of Sociology CAS

 Akademie věd
České republiky
Strategie AV21
Spíčovský výzkum ve veřejném zájmu